Our sketches tonight were written by novelist Frances Garrood.

Frances wrote fiction for women's magazines in the 70s, 80s and 90s and then became a published novelist in 2006, when MacMillan picked up her first book, 'Dead Ernest', in their Richard and Judy competition.

She went on to write three more novels.

Every 12 minutes this Christmas, a family will lose their home. No family should face homelessness alone.

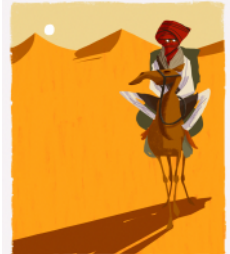

Following this production, we will be making a donation to Shelter, a charity which exists to defend the right to a safe home. Because home is everything.

Locally, Shelter offers one-to-one, personalised help with housing issues and homelessness. Online, information can be found about everything from reclaiming a deposit to applying as homeless. Advisers are available over webchat.

There is a free emergency helpline, open 365 days a year, for anyone struggling with a housing issue or homelessness. Shelter's solicitors provide free legal advice and attend court to help people who've lost their homes or are facing eviction.

Next Production - February 6th/7th

Our annual pantomime, '1001 Arabian Nights', is set in old Baghdad, where trouble is brewing. Unless the Princess Jasmina marries before her 21st Birthday, the evil Vizier will take control of the city! Things look grim ... but here to save the day are the love-sick Ali Barber (who pines for the Princess), his dim-witted brother Singbad the Sailor, and his fearsome mother, Dame Barber. Also trying to foil the villain's fiendish plot are Bob, a lad with a secret, a pantomime camel and a Genie who's been stuck in a magic ruby for far too long!

First read-through in the Hall at 8 pm on Wednesday December 10th. Register your interest or ask a question: panto@sfgkingston.org.uk

SGF is grateful to Big Yellow, New Malden, for assistance with storage for props, costumes and technical gear.
